Mike Peregrim

Junior Mike Peregrim was one of two members of the Lackawanna Scholastic Golf League to qualify for state championship competition during October 1985.

Mike shot an 80 in the initial qualifying round. In the finals, he fashioned a 41-40-36 — 117 in 27 holes to place fourth among seven state qualifiers from Lackawanna-Luzerne region. Both rounds were played at the Scranton Municipal Golf Course, Mount Cobb par 72.

In state competition, Mike fired an 81 and 83 in 36 holes of play on the Penn State Blue Course. Mike ranked 28th in a field of 74 competitors.

Playing golf just three years, Mike had a 39.5 average for nine holes during the past season. He was victorious in 10 of 11 matches and has an overall record of 16 wins, 4 losses, and 3 ties in three years of varsity competition. Along with juniors Bill Mecca, Scott Donnelly, and Frank Myrkalo and seniors Mike Mecca and R. J. Thomas, Mike led the Eagles to the Southern Division of the Lackawanna Scholastic Golf League.

Twirling Squad

Feature Twirler: SHERRY GRIFFITHS

Our Feature Twirler

Every Friday night for the past four years, Sherry Giffiths has been gracing the football fields with her twirling expertise. Everyone watches as she spins, dances, leaps and twirls around with ease. Each time Sherry twirls, everyone watching fills with school spirit and pride.

Although Sherry may twirl with ease it wasn't so easy getting where she is today. She began twirling at age four with the Hyde Park Cadettes. At first twirling was just something to do, then as she got older and better Sherry took twirling seriously. Her mother got her started fourteen years ago and she's been climbing uphill every since.

When preparing for the National Championships, Sherry practices up to five hours a day under the direction of Cindy Singer and with her private lessons teacher Dawn Potter Kirsch. Along with twirling for Central and competing Sherry has also been teaching at the Hyde Park Cadettes for the past two years. She enjoys teaching very much and will continue there upon graduating.

Sherry has no regrets about her twirling schedule although she admits it sometimes can put a damper on a social life. She also admits it is all worth it.

Since Sherry has been twirling she's won many awards. Among them are: National Championships — Twirl Team which were held at Ohio, the National Championships — Twirl Team held in Tennessee, and the National Championships.

Sherry is also 1983 and 1984 Penn State all around Champion and the 1985 Penn State champion in the Strut category.

When asked if she had any words for those just starting in twirling, she said, "Never think you are the best, keep working hard because there's always somebody out there who's better."

We are so lucky at Central to have such a talented athlete. Sherry will be surely missed but always remembered!

AQUILA '86

Editors' messages in yearbooks are usually the most boring and least looked at section, despite the fact that they often tell important things about the character of the book and the way it was produced.

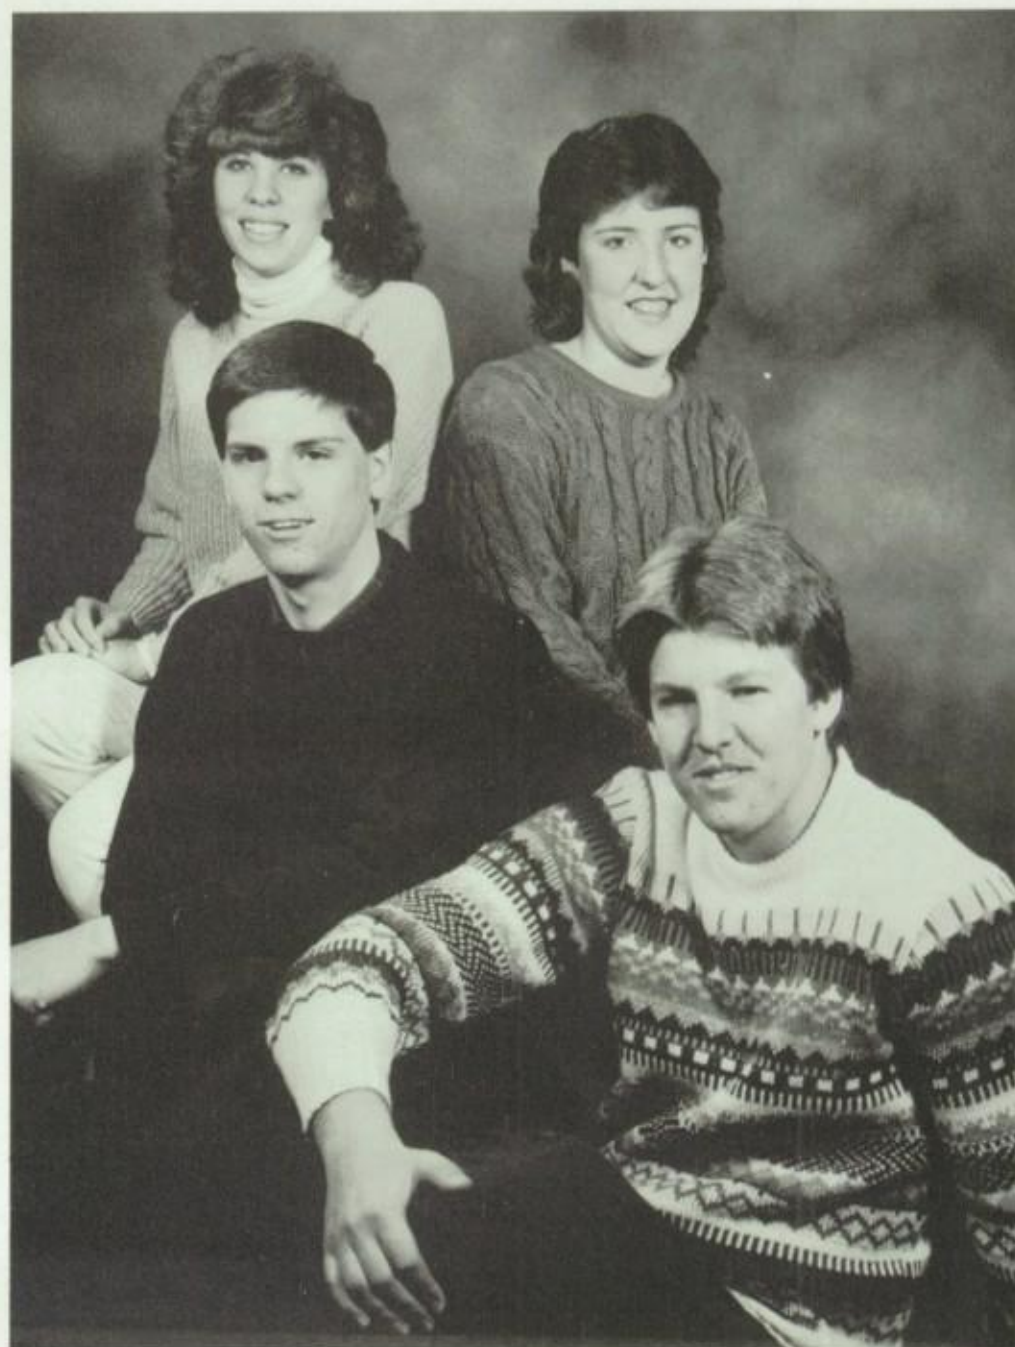

In this message we could ask questions to spur you into looking more closely at the pictures in this book. We could ask why Cheryl Tompkins has her arm on her head in every picture we have of her, or why there was a picture of Brian Kelly on every roll of film turned in by a female photographer? Instead, we the Editors, feel that these and other interesting trends will be picked up by the interested reader, whether a Class of 86 member, a parent, or a friend.

There are a few points we want to touch on in this message. First, so who decided what pictures will be used??? Often there are complaints that only a select group of people get their pictures in a book that is supposed to commemorate the Senior year of a class of 283. We want you to know that the Editors' picture selection was guided by picture availability. Secondly, more credit is due to our advisor, Mr. Peregrim, than is often given. Long hours of chasing after students for yearbook payments and teachers for picture identifications by Mr. Peregrim make this book possible. Without his dedication, Central's AQUILA (Eagle) would resemble the yearbooks of other city schools, and we don't want to mention what they look like. So, thank you, Mr. Peregrim!

In the course of the 1985-1986 school year, the Editors, with precious help from the typists and photographers, worked eighth period every day, which was just a warmup for the marathon sessions in the summer spent at Mr. Peregrim's house. Much dedication and devotion was put into this yearbook, and we each spent our share of time drawing layout after layout.

All in all, we hope that this collection of pictures is more than just paper to you, we hope that we have provided a memorial to this class that will stir memories and emotions years into the future. So, please enjoy what this book has to offer, and allow it to spur the return of memories to where they are most powerful, your mind. Thank you!

A super yearbook is the best way to describe CHS's 1986 edition of AQUILA.

Your editors, Wendy Bonevitch, Llewellyn Lewis, Craig Waverka, and Susan Woyshnar are to be highly commended for their painstaking work in their capacities as editors in helping prepare this volume for publication.

While many members of the Class of 1986 were basking in the sun during June and July, your editors spent countless hours preparing layouts, cropping pictures, and making command decisions as to what would or would not be included in this yearbook. I am sure that all of you will agree that their efforts produced superior results.

Your 1986 AQUILA consists of 256 pages, 12 of which are in color (Semi-Formal, Class Day, and Senior Prom). In addition to covering sports, extracurricular activities and clubs, Awards Day, and Graduation, many special and unique features have been included.

Indeed, I, personally, extend my deepest gratitude to Wendy, Llew, Craig, and Sue for their diligence, patience, and perseverance in helping to produce this mini-history of the Class of 1986.

Mr. Peregrim

FRENCH CLUB

French Club members must be or have been in the course at Central. Under the direction of Mr. Peregrin, the French Club seeks students who have an interest in French and a good time. During this year, the French Club sold raffle tickets and held dances. As a result of their profitable fundraisers, members enjoyed a day at Hershey Park.

GERMAN CLUB

The 1985-86 German Club is comprised of students who are not only interested in German, but who are also enrolled in any of four levels of German offered at Central. Accompanied by Miss Patricia Priolo, the club moderator, the group went to Cooper's Restaurant, earlier this year for a typical German dinner. They also went to Hershey Park with the French Club for their annual year end outing. Funds were raised by selling Advent calendars and Gummy Bears.

SPANISH CLUB

Central's 1985-86 Spanish Club had a larger membership than ever before in its history. Many members feasted at the Mexican Dinner held at Julia's Restaurant and afterwards tried their luck at breaking the pinata. In May, the club ended the year with a trip to Wilkes-Barre to see "Man of the Mancha" after enjoying the taste of many Spanish foods at La Hacienda. The money raised from a successful Mineo's Pie sale and an Easter carnation sale funded these activities. The Spanish Club would like to say to all of the graduated seniors, "Adios y buena suerte en el futuro."

MARCHING BAND

Our band is composed of both Marching and Concert units. It is one of the most active organizations at Central. The band represents our school and the entire school district at many community and school functions. This years' program included approximately 30 performances. In addition to football games, assembly programs, Christmas and spring concerts, our band also performed at the Viewmont Mall, at the J.C.'s Halloween program, the Penn-State Blue and White Game, the Christmas and St. Patrick's Day Parades, and Mayor Wenzel's Innauguration. Of course, the highlight of the year was our participation in the North American Music Festival at Niagara Falls, Canada in May. Thanks to all of the officers who helped make this another great year.

JAZZ ENSEMBLE

The Jazz Ensemble may be the smallest of our bands in number but certainly not in sound. This group continually distinguishes itself and Central as it performs in the school and in the community. This year our Jazz Ensemble performed not only at Central but also at the L.U.W. Banquet at Genetti Manor, the P.T.A. Area Council Dinner at the Hilton at the Lackawanna Station, and the Week of the Young Child at Warrens Armory. In May they represented Central at the North American Mini Festival at Niagara Falls, Canada.

STAGE CREW

Without someone to work the technical aspects — such as lighting, stage props, off stage sound and equipment, Central's plays would not be such successes. The people behind the scenes, who make these productions possible, are the Stage Crew.

SPEECH AND DEBATE

Our Speech and Debate team had an outstanding year. In April, they won the state championship for the second consecutive year, and the sixth time since 1967.

Central beat out over 100 schools and 1,000 contestants to win the state championship. Competition was held at University Park. Central, thanks to all its top point-getters, nearly doubled the second place team's score; and throughout the year, Central placed first at every competition.

Top point-getters at States were junior Tim Cusick, first place in Informative Speaking; Mark Rizzo, a sophomore, first place in prose Reading; junior Amy Wilson, second place in Persuasive Speaking; junior Michelle Bullett, third place in Prose Reading; junior Heather Mayer, fourth place in Poetry Reading; junior Julie Kramer, fifth place in Dramatic Interpretation; junior Neil Ginsberg, fifth place in Humorous Interpretation; freshman Jacob Kramer, sixth place in Boy's Extemporaneous Speaking; and Jeff Catalano, senior, finalist in Boy's Radio Announcing.

Rounding out the team were senior Lou Miniccozzi, juniors Stacey Frey and Tony Pappa, sophomores Christiana Muntzel, Gus Fahey, and John Cawley, and freshman Ron Bialkowski.

Other point-getters for the team were the second-place radio documentary, recorded in December, and the one-act competition play, "The Miracle Worker," which came in second in the state in November.

Many other students besides those who attended state finals competed in other tournaments during the season, which lasts from September to June!

With dedication and perseverance, along with a great coach, Mrs. Eleanor Langan, the team was once more supreme in Speech and Debate!

THESPIAS CLUB

The Thespis Club has provided students at Central with an experience in theatrics. Through their participation members can better their talents in acting and stage presence, as well as in set, costume design, and general stage crew experience.

Ski Club

Every Thursday night that there was snow on the slopes, Central's Ski Club ventured to Montage or Elk Mountain. Students involved in this club enjoy skiing and a great time in the snow.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA

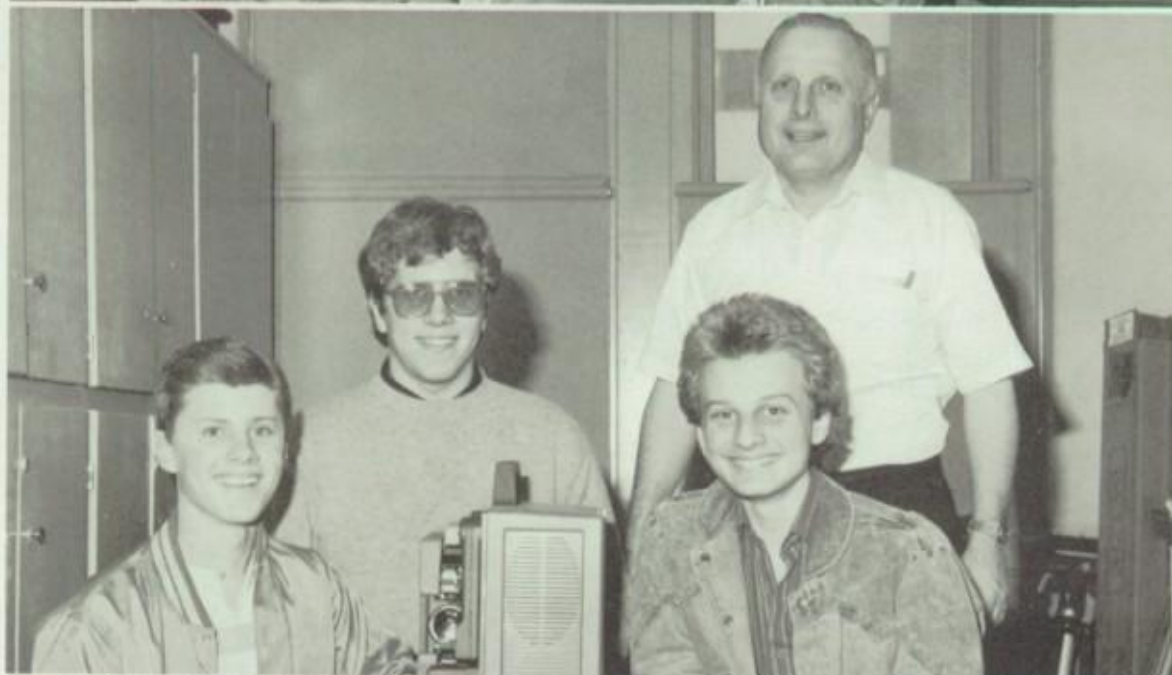

The main goal of the Future Teachers of America is to tutor students in such subjects as math and foreign languages.

AUDIO VISUAL CLUB

The members of the A-V Club keep Central's electrical equipment running smoothly. The club distributes film projectors, record players, and other devices which enhance the classroom experience.

E.S.L. TUTORS

The students involved in the E.S.L. Tutors Club provide an invaluable service to the foreign students who attend Central. They work with the students to help them understand the English language.

CENTRAL SINGERS

The "voices" of our school, the Central Singers, consist of the two regular chorus classes and one advanced class. Those who participate in Central Singers strengthen their talent and develop their skill in vocal music. The group also encourages students to pursue their musical interests. Recently this group has sung at nursing homes, hospitals, civic programs, and our school's own Spring Concert.

GUIDANCE CLUB

Members of the Guidance Club assist the counselors and Miss Wolff in the Guidance Office. Their jobs vary from stuffing envelopes to organizing the career center.

NATIONAL ART HONOR SOCIETY

In 1978, the National Art Education Association developed the National Art Honor Society for the purpose of promoting art education among high school students. In order to recognize excellence in art; sophomores, juniors, and seniors that maintain an 85% average or better in Art each quarter become eligible for membership, in the National Art Honor Society, which is a sister branch of the National Honor Society.

YEARBOOK STAFF

The 1986 Yearbook Staff worked diligently during the school year to make this yearbook the best ever. The staff was broken down into special committees, which aided the Yearbook Editors tremendously. Besides the yearbook ads, fundraising projects included the Valentine's Day Semi-Formal and a Gertrude Hawks Candy Sale. Thanks to everyone (especially to Wendy, Llewellyn, Craig, Susan, and Mr. Peregrin) who made this yearbook great!!!

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council is the voice of the students. Representatives from each homeroom are elected in the beginning of each school year and the representatives aid in events such as dances and fundraising activities. The Lackawanna United Way Drive was very successful this year. In addition, the Student Council conducted a Homecoming Queen Contest before Thanksgiving.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The National Honor Society is an exclusive organization for those students who earned an average of 90% or above during their years at Central. This year approximately 60 students were inducted into the organization. The group raised money for itself by selling holiday gift items such as Christmas ornaments and Easter candy. The members of the N.H.S. were recognized at graduation by being given the privilege of wearing the ceremonial hoods, a tradition at Central. They were also awarded sweaters at the annual banquet at the Castle Restaurant.

"The American Scholar"
by Ralph Waldo Emerson

In this distribution of functions the scholar is the delegated intellect. In the right state he is MAN THINKING. In the degenerate state, when the victim of society, he tends to become a mere thinker, or still worse, the parrot of other men's thinking.

In this view of him, as Man Thinking, the theory of his office is contained. Him Nature solicits with all her placid, all her monitory pictures; him the past instructs; him the future invites. Is not indeed every man a student, and do not all things exist for the student's behoof? And, finally, is not the true scholar the only true master?

The following essays were written under the supervision of MRS. HELEN TIMMS, Advanced Placement English Instructor.

SCHOOL SPIRITS by Jeff Catalano

It could only have happened to me! I was locked in the school. It was eleven o'clock at night and I was trapped in an enormous castle of pitch black labyrinths and catacombs called Central High School. With play practice every night, it was bound to happen. Quite unassuming and very tired, I had been completely unprepared for what I am about to tell you. That night, the night I was locked in, I was struck with a vague feeling of fear at being alone. I decided it was best to feel my way to the auditorium for some sleep.

As I was just about to surrender to my dream, I noticed a figure moving in the shadows. Thinking it was a janitor, I chased it to Room 204. Before I entered, I looked through the window in the door and beheld a sight so strange that I began to doubt the reliability of my eyes. The room was filled with ghosts! Not ghosts as in Casper, but actual transparent apparitions of people! They were dressed in drab colors and their hair was trim and unstyled. I guessed from their garb they were from the early 1900's. I noticed also how serious and attentive they were and thought of how shocked Ms. Dwyer would be!

This sight caught me so off-guard that I figured I was just exhausted and should walk it off. In my stunned condition, I ambled up to the cafeteria. The sight I beheld nearly pushed me over the edge. The "cafe" was full of ghostly children! However, something was wrong. No one was eating, yet they all looked so hungry. I noticed a calendar hanging on the wall; the year was 1933. I was seeing students from different long-gone eras. Anxious to see more, I made my way to the main hall. The halls were filled with boys and girls in all styles of clothes, falling in love for the first time. My excitement was at a fever pitch! When I reached the main hall, I saw some men at the glass cabinet atop the steps. They were hanging a memorial plaque. I approached cautiously and read it. "TO THOSE WHO MADE THE SUPREME SACRIFICE AND OTHER STUDENTS OF CENTRAL HIGH WHO SERVED IN WORLD WAR II." I realized then that some students were taken in their prime years and thanked God that my friends and I did not have to meet that responsibility.

Suddenly, I heard music. It was faint but grew louder as I followed it to the gym. There I saw, dancing to the tune "Johnny B. Good," at least 200 happy ghosts. Since I could walk through them, I made my way to the band easily. Dressed in black leather jackets, they sang as girls in poodle skirts and bobby socks danced. Above the bandstand, I saw a sign — "Central High Sock Hop 1957."

I was filled with a sense of insight that I never had before. I suddenly became very tired and resolved to return to the auditorium. I drifted off to sleep. The next day, a teacher shook my shoulder to wake me and asked me if I had spent all night there. After I explained how I was locked in, he sent me home. To this day, I can't tell you if what I "saw" was real or a dream.

Whatever happened, I left with a new perception of my school. I realized it has seen thousands of students, its first ones probably long dead. It was built at a time when horses travelled dirt roads and still stands today as shuttles hurtle through space.

Now I look and see a gold tower although others may argue that it's green. They may say that the eagles on the pedestals are not there, but I see them — as proud as they were almost one hundred years ago. It may be hidden by the shadows of taller buildings, but to me Central is still "'neath the sunny skies." This school has a past which few buildings can claim. It would be a shame if the tradition of Central High School were to come to an end.

THESE SHOES TELL A TALE by Joanna Reilly

As life goes on, as feet get bigger, shoes come and go. They tell the tale of my growth as I passed through Central High. They could even be considered a chart of my maturation.

As a naive freshman, I had blind faith in my mother's judgment. Although she didn't dress me in the morning, she did influence my choice of "proper high school attire." The fact that she had attended high school led me to believe she would unfailingly put me out of the house every morning looking like a regular, experienced high school student.

This freshman gullibility had me walking to school in sensible, no-scuff, brown oxfords. It didn't take me too long to realize that no one wore sensible shoes, much less brown ones!

The following year I was confused. My mother, whose judgment I had always trusted, had failed me. I was really on my own. In the midst of all this confusion, I relied on the old stand-by, my sneakers. My sneakers never left my feet. Rain or shine, I reached for my red and white Adidas. When they wore out, I promptly bought a blue and white pair of Adidas. The security these sneakers afforded me came from the fact that they never failed me. The heel never broke, the lace never snapped, and I never slipped on the ice.

The summer before my junior year was one of great change. I got a fulltime subscription to "Seventeen" magazine, even though I was only sixteen. My curfew was now eleven-thirty, almost midnight! I could tell I was really grown up!

After this summer of growth, I thought my wardrobe should reflect my new-found sophistication. I dragged my mother to all the malls and shops to pick out my fall "collection." I got the pointiest toes, brightest colors, and highest heels. Nothing was too outrageous. When school finally arrived, I spent hours co-ordinating shoes with purse, shoes with earrings and shoes with nail polish. I endured cramped toes and blisters but my feet looked good.

In spite of all the compliments I received junior year, I refused to do a repeat performance this year. I don't have the time to spend matching shades of leather and enamel. As I run out the door, I grab the nearest, most comfortable shoes possible. Even though my feet don't receive the attention they used to, they thank me every day. No longer do they have to endure the constraints of "fashion" I thrust upon them. I am now secure enough in myself that I don't have to advertise my maturity. If all my years at Central have done anything, they have instilled in me the common sense to express my individuality without compromising my comfort.

PRESENTED BY

Freshman year started off great for BRIAN SCOTT, DANA HOWARD, FRED LEIBOLD, PAT McDONOUGH, and PAT SHIELDS when they were kept after orientation by Mr. Langan who talked to them about wising off.

School began and our homerooms were all on third floor. If you were really lucky you had Miss McHale in our dining facilities.

There were a lot of strange and new faces that year, and the freshman girls were always trying to attract the older guys. Like when KATHY KULICK, BETH GORDON, BARB BOOTH, FRANNY CAWLEY, and JOANN KANAVY impersonated seniors to impress university guys.

Or they were playing the part of the helpless maiden, like LISA MASCARO did when she tripped up the steps and dropped her books in order to get the attention of a group of senior boys.

Then there was the time when Frank and Jesse James, alias MATT BEALOR and RON JORDAN, tried robbing a bank using the back of a deposit slip while on an excursion with the art class.

There were some weird hallucinations going on that year, like MARIE FLANNELLY claiming to see the Bat Mobile in the Penalty Box's parking lot and a certain English teacher talking to Smurfs on her desk and dodging invisible erasers she claimed the students were throwing.

People began making treks up to the Mill and then there was the first freshman social gathering which was broken up abruptly scattering everyone onto the hills and into the falls.

Probably one of the highlights of that year was when the Freshman cheerleaders won a trophy at competitions that they really worked hard for.

How about some of the couples freshman year like SCOTT PETTINATO and DEBI ARMSTRONG, BONNIE ROLLA and BARRY EIDEN, and MARY BETH PETHICK and SEAN CORBETT. It seemed like none of those worked out too well.

Do you remember MATT BEALOR playing freshman football?

The summer came, but we still managed to see each other either at the tracks or the Maloney. But sophomore year came around and they moved most of our homerooms down a floor, closer to the ground — slowly moving us out.

Some unknown track stars were born such as JONATHAN GOODALL who moved so fast out of the lav that he didn't have time to fix his pants and began running down the hall late for Mr. McAndrew's Algebra class and ended up with the pants around his ankles which kind of tripped him up. Then there was the team of BONNIE ROLLA and CHRIS JONES. It seemed that they were testing their endurance while running through the desert and BONNIE stepped right out of her shoes that got stuck in the mud.

Biology was the big science that year. And we got to dissect all those dead things — like the dead frog someone got from Mr. Gammatori's room and put in SHERRY GRIFFITH'S purse, so when she reached for a pen she ended up grabbing the frog.

Then there was the time CHRIS MICHINSKI chased Mr. Gammatori out of class with a water gun only to be surprised to get a beaker of water dumped on her head.

If we weren't in school we were having some kind of inservice or holiday vacation, which only gave us more time to mess something up. On New Year's Eve, BONNIE ROLLA broke a bed while supposedly babysitting. Then on St. Patrick's Day, DIZZI (BRIAN JEFFERS) decided to celebrate in North Carolina.

Does anybody have any idea where ERIN HOLMES was the night after the dance?

Our gym was famous for its weekend dances which are very hard to come by these days. Or for square dancing which everyone loved to do.

Weekends also meant sophomore social gatherings such as SEAN CORBETT'S parties which became pool parties whether he liked it or not. It wasn't really hard to find out where these gatherings took place. All you had to do was look for KATHY KULICK'S 'pink filers.' The ones that almost got her expelled. A lot of good things came out of these social gatherings, such as the discovery of JOANN KANAVY'S secret aspiration to become a mountain climber, which was revealed one night in Rick Kryeski's backyard.

One lousy thing about school was finals, but even those had their moments like when Miss Ellen's math class dressed in plaid for her final and how about when Mrs. Lawrence kicked DANA HOWARD out of her English final because he was wearing shorts and told him not to come back until he changed. So he came back with a skirt on. Was that the same skirt that he ripped off MARY BETH HART in the locker room?

We had some of our top students on the Speech and Debate team sophomore year such as WENDY BONEVITCH, LLEWELLYN, the twinkie, LEWIS, BONNIE ROLLA, JEFF TAYLOR, MEGAN McGRATH, PAT GILROY, JUDY PUSATERI, TIFFANY CROSS, and MARY BETH PETHICK.

We saw the beginning of several couples such as JACKIE KISCHELL and PAT MONAHAN, MIKE McGUIRE and KIM WASCURA, DEBI ARMSTRONG and JACK McHALE, and FRED LEIBOLD and MARY BETH PETHICK.

Two years had already gone by and we were now halfway through Central. We got so attached to each other during school we made it a point to meet at familiar places such as the clearing, the desert, or the A.C. field.

Most of us got along with one another, but some really became attached to others like ROBERT RUDIS trying to win the heart of BONNIE ROLLA by bringing flowers, candy, and balloons to her everyday.

Or Mr. Gatelli's love for his physics classes whom he affectionately called — well, you know the name. But he couldn't ask for two finer and more accurate students than MICHELE MARTIN and KIM MORGAN, who always claimed to have faulty lab equipment.

Did you know JANE HOLMES and Co. went into their own landscaping business when she slightly altered her neighbor's front lawn?

Not many people realized the true significance of December 25th that year. It was the day JIM DeSTEFANO received his famous green truck.

Another significant happening Junior year was the defeat of Nativity's basketball team by the soon to be Central Varsity team. Speaking of basketball, one of our star players, FRED LEIBOLD, joined DENISE CZYZYK, BRETT SIOCK, and ANDY GOODMAN, in getting caught with a dreaded unopened can of Coke in Miss Conaboy's class and all were sent down to the office.

The band had an interesting incident that year on the way back from Maryland. Their bus broke down in the middle of a dark and empty highway, but they were entertained by CARL WALSH and friends, who delivered stand-up routines over the intercom.

Junior year wouldn't have been complete without the election of our Senior Class Officers of 1986 who were: BRIAN SCOTT, President; BONNIE ROLLA, Vice President; MARY BETH HART and WENDY BONEVITCH, Corresponding Secretaries; DENISE CZYZYK, Recording Secretary; LISA GHERGO, Girl's Treasurer; and FRED AEBLI, Boy's Treasurer.

MIKE DRASDA, FRED LEIBOLD, MIKE MECCA, JEFF BELARDI, and R. J. THOMAS carried our baseball team to victory at Districts and they all received a letter of congratulations from Rep. Fred Belardi.

Then the fall of 1985 rolled around. Senior year began and we were going to try to make it the best, and we did. It seemed to all start with that Togo party in BETH GORDON'S back yard with ¾ of the senior class.

Then football season started and good predictions were made for our football team with devoted players such as PAUL GRABOWSKI, BRIAN KELLY, BRIAN SCOTT, SCOTT SMITH, SCOTT PETTINATO, ROB RACIBOR, DAVE HERMAN, BARRY EIDEN, JIM DONAHUE, MIKE McGUIRE, VINCE CIANFICHI, and ED MADZIN, but things didn't go quite their way with a final record of 3 wins and 8 losses.

The auditorium used to echo with the chant for 'EDDIE' MADZIN during the pep rallies that never had any pep. But at the football games we had the best cheering section, with people like KAREN FERGUSON, KEITH KLATT, C. J. HOFFMAN, RON JORDAN, ELLEN MULLEN, JANE HOLMES, JOHN FINNERTY, and JEFF STATS MAN.

This section would have been useless however without the help of the cheerleaders who were MELISSA BERADELLI, DANIELLE DeFREITIS, BETH GORDON, LISA GHERGO, WENDY BONEVITCH, MARY GENE BUTLER, LISA MASCARO, BONNIE ROLLA, MAGGIE McGOFF, JUDY PUSATERI, SARAH WARRING, MICHELE HORVATH, MARY BETH HART, KELLY GEARY, KATHY DAVIS, and KATHY KULICK. Pom Poms were LORI WAHL, DEBBIE ARMSTRONG, MARIA SANDY, TAMMY MAGNOTTA, CHERYL IDE, KIM WASCUR, DAWN KUPIEC, PEGGY VERESPEY, PATTY LENCH, DAWN KOCHIS, KIM MORGAN, LINDA GENOVESE, MICHELE MARTIN, MICHELLE MICHAELY, JACKIE GREENWOOD, and MARY BETH PETHICK.

If you ever got tired or bored of the same old thing you could have dropped in on KEITH COYNE and KEVIN DECKER'S apartment to watch a man swallow a quarter and then pull it out of his nose.

And if you weren't there you might have been involved in one of those notorious ice cube fights at Papa's.

After football, basketball season kicked in. Our basketball team had a great season, winning the second half championship by beating Dunmore and finishing with a record of 19 wins and 7 losses with the help of MARK "gosman" MATYLEWICZ, BILL PABST, MIKE DRASDA, FRED LEIBOLD, and the ever so consistent, RON JORDAN.

Those games drew the best crowds and the greatest fans, especially the ones who painted their faces blue and gold like MIKE IRVING, DAVE HERMAN, FRED AEBLI, and KEITH KLATT.

Then there's the always strong swim teams with JEFF STATS MAN, C. J. HOFFMAN, R. J. THOMAS, and TIM HOBAN along with MARY BETH PETHICK, KATHLEEN CAVANAUGH, DINA ALBANESEI, SHARON BALISH, and MICHELLE ZAFFINO. JEFF STATS MAN loved swimming so much that he even took his car, the war wagon, swimming in a flooded road and ended up being towed out.

There were a couple of personal records set that I'm sure most of us are unaware of such as KATHY KULICK and DARD BOOTH'S record for warming the bench for three years in a row.

And the infamous headbangers, JIM DeSTEFANO, BILL KIRCHNER, and TOM DEFAZIO reached unconceivable hair lengths. TOM DEFAZIO claims the secret is spraying it with air freshener instead of hair spray.

How about the shopping spree record set by BETH GORDON, KATHY DAVIS, FRANNY CAWLEY, JANE HOLMES, and BONNIE ROLLA at 4:00 in the morning at Price Chopper.

JUDI PUSATERI, THERESA WALSH, and ERIN WALSH tried to make a fast buck when they had a locker sale consisting of candy, pens, and books.

The major reading this year seemed to be Shakespeare's classic Macbeth, but no one topped DAVE MACARCHICK'S vocal rendition of the classic.

The Talent Show was a big hit with M.C., BRIAN (New York, New York) SCOTT. We saw a band with definite talent win, consisting of RALPH SHULDE, VINCE CIANFICHI on drums, BILL DeIPRETE on bass, FRANK GRUDEN on keyboards, and ALAN SHIELDS amazed us on lead guitar.

If MIKE MECCA wasn't swinging a bat, and R. J. THOMAS wasn't bouncing off of a diving board, they were making their way to Golf All-Stars.

Then there was our Track team made up of ELLEN MULLEN, SHANETTE BLACK, MARGARET NAUGHTON, MELISSA BERADELLI, CAROL WARRICK, CHRIS REIDMILLER, and BONNIE VOLPE running for the girl's. And GENE PATRICK, LOU MINICOZZI, PAUL LYNN, VINCE CIANFICHI, VINCE VISOSKAS, PAUL ASMAN, BRIAN KELLY, and SCOTT SMITH running for the boy's. Inclement weather almost postponed their season, but our loyal athletes ran in it anyway.

On the tennis courts, we had JONATHAN GOODALL and CRAIG WEVERKA smashing tennis balls around.

The first of a series of softball games was held between South Side and Minooka. South Side players were NICK GANZ, JOHN WELLER, BILL SWEENEY, BRETT SIOCK, PAT McDONOUGH, PAT SHIELDS, JIM CLIFFORD, and ED MADZIN. Playing for Minooka were JOHN FINNERTY, BARRY EIDEN, BRIAN JEFFERS, JEFF STATS MAN, RON JORDAN, FRED AEBLI, SCOTT WISH, JOE GORDON, DAVE HERMAN, and MIKE IRVING. Which side was TONY PLISKA actually on? The South Siders were victorious 18-17.

There were a few couples still holding steady like MAGGIE McGOFF and SCOTT PETTINATO, BILL PABST and MICHELE MARTIN, and BRIAN SCOTT and FRANNY CAWLEY. Others became shaky and fell apart like MARK MATYLEWICZ and SARAH WARRING.

If couples weren't breaking up, people were blowing up in class like ROBERT RUDIS, wonder what he was actually planning to do with that stuff?

These are only a portion of the people who make up the memories, good and bad, at Central. We hope you keep these memories in your minds and in your hearts always.

1986 CLASS WILL PRESENTED BY

Ed Madzin

ED: SCOTT SMITH wills the school record in the 110 meter hurdles to T. J. SMITH.
 FRAN: And to give T. J. the extra advantage, ED here wills him his speed and jumping abilities.
 ED: BRETT SIOCK leaves his flannel shirts, washed of course, and his work boots with odor eaters in them to SCOTT WIZBELL.
 FRAN: GOS MAN leaves his Gilby Quote book to JIM KEENAN.
 ED: WALLY SEIGLE, who has served me well, wills KERRI MALAKIN Birney Beverage.
 FRAN: BRIAN SCOTT leaves his many catches playing tight end in football to DOUG ZELLERS ... ED, you were on the football team, how many did he catch this year? ZERO
 ED: JOHN MACKAREY wills his orange Cadillac to his sister NANCY.
 FRAN: JOANN KANAVY, the infamous weenie, leaves a package of index cards for next year's contest to JENNIFER LUCKE.
 ED: The Monkey's Paw is left to SANDI CLEMENT and DARIN McMULLEN by of course, you guessed it, DAVE MACARCHICK.
 FRAN: What's the Monkey's Paw ED?
 ED: I don't know. STEVE SLEYO leaves the Cemetery to BOB FANUCCI.
 FRAN: MICHELE HORVATH and JACKIE GREENWOOD leave their Motley Crew collection to the underclassmen headbangers.
 ED: Yeah, like the ones who hang out in the back of JIM DESTEFANO's green plumber's truck.
 FRAN: TERRI SHELP leaves her plot at the cemetery to SUE MICHAELS.
 ED: BILL SWEENEY leaves his daily visits and wonderful father-son relationship with MR. KARAM to BOB FANUCCI.
 FRAN: BARB BOOTH, SUE McINTYRE, and KATHY KULICH leave the Nasty Girl Organization to STACEY DELVECCIO and TRISHA KUNZ
 ED: Yowza! What a group! Speaking of a different group of girls, TIFFANY CROSS, DENISE CZYZYK, LISA MASCARO, and JOANN KANAVY leave a bottle of Lauren to next years gym class. Come to think of it they could have used it this year.
 FRAN: R. J. THOMAS leaves his car —
 ED: You mean the boat?
 FRAN: to BUCKWHEAT.
 ED: CHRIS REIDMILLER, KATHLEEN CAVANAUGH, COLLEEN GALLAGHER, and ELLEN MULLEN leave all their profitable trips to "Spree" to LINDA LEIBOLD and JEANIE MCGOWAN.
 FRAN: BILL KIRCHNER wills his hair to GLEN CARL.
 ED: Who'd want that mop?
 FRAN: It looks like GLEN CARL DOES.
 ED: And here's another one. HENRY STONE wills his hair to GREG NORTON.
 FRAN: And finally, JEFF CATALANO wills his hair to JIMMY WILSON.
 ED: But FRANNY is he a headbanger?
 FRAN: No, he's not.
 ED: Yeah, JEFF CATALANO, I remember him, he's got some nice looking locks. BILL DELPRETE, tuba man at large leaves to MIKE BEAN his year and one-half old ferraro French fries.
 FRAN: LORI WAHL leaves with her bucket, mop, and Top Job to anyone who is willing and nice enough to clean up after parties.
 ED: I remember her she was a clean freak.
 LLEWELLYN LEWIS leaves the position of defender of American and conservative values from liberal teachers to RICH BATES and GUENTHER BARHEIS.

FRAN: KIM WASCURA leaves one pound of bacon and one pound of ham to ANN McHALE.

ED: MELISSA OCCHIPINTI leaves all her excessive tardiness and absences and the big mess in her locker to SHARON SEQUIN.

FRAN: Karen Ferguson leaves her father's Norelco electric shaver to MIKE HOBAN.

ED: KELLY McMULLEN and DENISE CZYZYK will ANN SWEENEY and MARIA LAVELLE their cave at the cemetery.

FRAN: ED where was their cave?

ED: I don't remember, but they'll never get me in there AGAIN.

FRAN: DANIELLE DEFREITAS leaves her unlimited partying abilities to MELISSA SIMRELL.

□□ED: ERIN BUCHANAN leaves her insomnia to the future generation David Letterman fans.

FRAN: DENISE YANKOSKI, LORI WAHL, KAREN ZANGARDI, and KELLY GEARY leave 150ml beakers to JIM KEENAN and TIMMY KEARNEY. Use them well.

ED: BARRY EIDEN wills MOE the three faces that he hasn't made during the year in Specialized Communications.

FRAN: MARIE FLANNELLY leaves her extra large parking space her for horn, and $20 for a boating license to any junior with a car big enough (and God knows hers is big enough) to be classified as a boat.

ED: TIM KLINE leaves his class ring, gold chain, and sunglasses to NUPPY.

FRAN: KELLY BARRETT wills some common sense to her dizzy junior friends BARB NORTON and MARCI AHERN.

ED: JEFF CERATO wills his Houston Astro memorabilia to MR. KASARDA who we all know loves the Houston Astros.

FRAN: LISA GHERGO leaves an alarm clock to CRAIG GROHOWSKI who never seemed to get her to school before 8:55.

ED: RON JORDAN wills his wonderful relationship with MR. GILBRIDE to MIKE MARION.

FRAN: CHERYL TOMPKINS wills her patience and understanding in MRS. WAGNER'S class to SUE POLCHA.

ED: JIM DESTEPHANO leaves his great driving ability to TIM PHILLIPS.

FRAN: LYNDA GENOVESE wills JEANNIE GEISINGER her wonderful temperament at lunch. DONNA SHAW

ED: Hey! Isn't that the chick who plays the violin?

FRAN: Yeah! And she's leaving her violin to her sister DIANE.

ED: CHRIS MICHINSKI leaves HOPE CHERKAS a squirt gun for MR. GAMMATONI'S biology class.

FRAN: MARYBETH HART leaves her big mouth to any underclassman who likes to get people in trouble.

ED: ELLEN MULLEN leaves her starting bench position on the girls' basketball team and her 85-86 bench wear to any underclassman who doesn't mind the splinters.

FRAN: MOLLY CULKIN leaves the uncrowded rides to religion class to LISA and TRACY GARVEY.

ED: FRED LIEBOLD wills GEORGE ABDALLA a smaller head.

FRAN: MELISSA BERADELLI leaves her track spikes to SHERRI PRICE and her golden boots to MARI GRABOWSKI and wishes them the best of luck next year.

ED: JOHNATHAN GOODALL wills his ability to cut afros to CHRIS POTTER.

FRAN: VINCE CIANFICHI wills his car to anyone and everyone who needs a ride anywhere.

ED: ERIN HOLMES leaves her seat in 4th period study to BILLY and KATHY REGAN.

FRAN: BETH GORDON leaves her toga and crown to LEANN FALZETTI and MARCI AHERN for their first party of senior year.

ED: CLIFF HOFFMAN leaves the hook to MIKE McDONALD because he needs it.

FRAN: To LORI McGEE, MARYBETH PETHICK leaves a watch with a light on it so she does not have any more excuses for coming home at 3:30 in the morning.

ED: LINDA JACOBS leaves all her lipsticks and tapes to ALLIE BALDASSARI.

FRAN: JANE HOLMES leaves a list of phone numbers of every cab co. in the city for the long trips back to South Side to ERIN GILBRIDE, DENISE KING, and KERRI MALAKIN.

ED: PAUL GRABOWSKI leaves MOE DECANTIS a new hat for next years football season because the one he wore this year was all kicked out.

FRAN: CAROLINE WARRICK leaves all her complaints, wining, and temper tantrums to TRACY GARVEY.

ED: LOU MINICOZZI leaves all of the hotel keys from the speech and debate trips to NEIL GINSBERG.

FRAN: MARY GENE BUTLER leaves all her old boyfriends to KELLY CLEVELAND.

ED: JANET LEWIS leaves her half of the locker to CHRIS ARNONE.

FRAN: TERRI SHELPS wills BOB FANUCCI 10 free dance lessons to improve for next year's semi-formal.

ED: JEFF STATSMAN leaves a dollar to O.B.

FRAN: ROBIN ZAMPANO leaves her patience and understanding for the Arthur Treacher's customers to LISA ROSENCRANS.

ED: BRIDGET POWER wills her locker mirror to DENISE ANDERSON.

FRAN: PEGGY VERESPEY leaves all her chemistry notes to CINDY CECCACI.

ED: DENISE CZYZYK and ERIN HOLMES will their Swingers to whoever will pay Denaples to take them.

FRAN: GERRI HOPKINS leaves the stage crew co-chairmanship to CHRIS TRACEY.

ED: PAUL GEORGE LENAKOS whose trademark is a red bandana wills three bandannas to someone who is headstrong. In other words, she or he will not do something out of peer pressure or be influenced by his so called "friends at school." This person must be kind and someone who works out answers for himself. She or he must be confident, have faith in himself or herself and be unaffected by what others may think of him. This is an equal opportunity inheritance.

FRAN: And to end ED and I leave our memories of a certain toga party in the heart of Minooka.

ED: Yeah, I should have worn my jogging shoes for that one.

FRAN: To all the Juniors who are about to start celebrating their senior year.

The plot of The Curious Savage is concerned with Mrs. Ethel P. Savage, a wealthy widow who has amassed a $10 million dollar fortune. Her greedy step-children, in order to cheat Mrs. Savage out of her money, have her committed to an asylum inhabited by a delightful bunch of lunatics. Many disastrous attempts are made by her step-children to regain the money that Mrs. Savage has had hidden in her Teddy Bear. When the lights drop, the money is stolen and her children, believing they are now penniless, decide to leave her and return home. Miss Willie, a nurse, then steps forward and returns Mrs. Savage's money, now that she is safe from her greedy children.

Plot Summary

Central's PHSSL competition play during the fall of 1985 was the Miracle Worker by William Gibson. They play centers on the special relationship shared by Annie Sullivan and Helen Keller.

The play opens when Helen is a young baby. She has just overcome a bout with smallpox. She is given a clean bill of health by the doctor, but the family soon learns that despite the physician's assurances, Helen is deaf and blind. The scene then shifts to ten years later. Helen has become a monster and her father, Capt. Keller, has decided to send for a teacher from Boston. That teacher is Annie Sullivan.

Her arrival causes an uproar. The family simply wants Helen to learn basic manners, but the ambitious Miss Sullivan has more in mind than that. Annie attempts to teach young Helen to communicate, after many struggles and fights, at the climactic scene at the water-pump, Helen is opened to the world.

Central's production won several awards in Pennsylvania High School Speech League Competition; it captured first place in district and regional drama festivals and placed second in the state. Julie Kramer, Franny Cawley and Sherri Price were named to the PHSSL all-state cast.

A Foreign Exchange Teacher's View on American Education

"Hi, rookie!" one of my colleagues greeted me on the first day of school. I protested, telling him that I had been teaching for several years in Germany before I was selected for the German-American teacher exchange program. My colleague, however, seemed unimpressed: "Your years over there don't count here. In our system you're a rookie!"

It did not take me very long to realize how true his words were. In many respects, switching from a German to an American classroom was like starting all over again. Not only was I going to work in a new environment, but I was also confronted — for the first time — with the task of teaching my mother-tongue. I was going to teach it to students who often behaved and responded in ways that were distinctly different from what I had been used to — if they responded at all. And all this was going to happen within a time frame that, for one school year, would considerably change the rhythm of my life.

Schools in Germany operate on a year-round schedule, with a 6½ week summer vacation and several one-to three-week breaks during the year. Most Americans would probably find this type of schedule unattractive. Personally, during my year in Scranton, I have learned to be even more appreciative of its merits. I admire my American colleagues and also the students who have the strength to carry on week after week, month after month, without a major break that allows enough time to unwind and store new energy. To me, the weeks seemed to be dragging on endlessly, and there were times — when on my way to school — my thoughts secretly wandered across the Atlantic Ocean to my German colleagues who would be skiing the slopes of the Alps in the third week of their Christmas vacation or sailing the waters of the Mediterranean on a two-week Easter cruise.

As for my daily schedule, getting up an hour later than at home in Triberg, where school starts at 7:50 A.M., was something I could handle easily. It took me some time, though, to get accustomed to teaching in the afternoon. At German schools, with some regional variation, afternoon classes take place only once or twice a week, mainly in subjects that require special facilities like physical education or science. But as a rule, school days in Triberg end at 1:00. Teachers are not expected to be present at school once they have taught the daily portion of their 23 classes and covered their supervision duties, which do not amount to more than half an hour per week. Of course there is a price for free afternoons, which most teachers and students seem to pay willingly: there are classes every other Saturday from 7:50 to 11:20 in the morning.

American students visiting a German school would certainly find little excitement in terms of social life. After-school activities are few, compared to the broad range of activities that American high schools offer their students. Organized team sports, for example, are rarely found at schools in Germany. Students who are interested in participating in the various sports activities must join local clubs. Taking everything into account, it seems to me that in the United States schools play a far more important role in the life of a community and carry a heavier burden than our schools. At the same time, teachers in this country apparently have to struggle harder to receive public support and recognition for the job they are doing.

Teachers in Germany are hired and paid by the state rather than by local school authorities, and have the status of civil servants for life. While their schedule seems to allow them considerable time for second jobs, the terms of their contracts leave no room for such an option. In return for the high degree of security they enjoy and a salary that allows them to live more comfortably than their colleagues in most other European countries and in the United States, teachers are expected to invest their full energy in their profession.

How do American students and their attitudes compare to students in Germany? I have always found it difficult to answer this question, even more so since the educational systems of the two countries differ so greatly from each other. It is important to know that students in Germany, after four years of elementary education, are divided up and go to different types of schools, depending on their interests and their abilities. They are five- and six-year secondary schools that provide a solid foundation in all major subjects. After graduation at the age of 15 or 16, students go into vocational training programs that take — for most occupations — between two and three and a half years. The six-year schools also qualify students for attendance at technical schools and nursing schools or for medium-level careers in business and administration. About 20% of all students go — after fourth grade — to the so-called "Gymnasium," an academically-oriented high-school that leads up to 13th grade and prepares students for university.

Since admission to both the six-year type of school and the "Gymnasium" is restricted, there is clearly a more competitive atmosphere in classrooms already at the elementary level. Moreover, selection after fourth grade results in a more homogeneous student population at any given type of secondary school. As a rule, students at the "Gymnasium"-level can be expected to be easier to motivate than those at other schools. And as far as foreign languages are concerned, being surrounded by nations where different languages are spoken only few German students would question the value of learning a foreign language. At my school in Triberg, at least seven years of English and five years of a second foreign language — either French or Latin — are mandatory for all students. It gives you a sense of accomplishment as a teacher, if you go from a fifth grade class that has just learned its first sentences in English to a class of thirteenth grade students who read and discuss English literature or articles from Time magazine.

As for my freshman German classes at Central, I had excellent students who obviously expected to get a lot more out of school than just fun. In my view, the U.S. would not have to worry so much about the "tongue-tiedness" of its citizens if these people were given an earlier start and more continuity in learning foreign languages. And also, if they were not inhibited in their progress by students who don't care but who — in the name of equal opportunity — are allowed to sit in the same classes. In looking back, the hardest part for me as a German exchange teacher in an American classroom was to find a balance between the formula "Hard work + discipline = success" and the slogan that the German teacher exchange branch describes in its handbook as one of the basic principles of American education: "Keep the students happy and off the road."

INDIANA DAVE AND THE TEMPLE OF SCHOOL by David Bookamer

I was dwarfed by the looming stone structure. History oozed from the mouths of the gargoyles peering down from above. How many thousands had walked in before me? How many made it out? I went in.

My elders were huge. The sportsmen lumbered by in a whirlwind of cologne, closely trailed by a pack of giddy girl-women with hair flowing and excited words ricocheting off the locker-lined walls. I was given as much regard as one of the cracks in the wall.

That is when I began to notice them — the cracks in the walls. Romance and magic were lost on that day. It was not fantastic — it was serious. I was unawed. This place was not so spectacular. In fact, it was falling apart. Faults can often escape an admiring glance. But now that I was part of the institution, I could see that it was not so solid.

When it rained outside, it rained plaster indoors. The sky was falling down. Windows were broken and panes leaked drafts. We froze until mid-winter and then roasted during the rest of the year. The water was terrible and inaccessible most of the time. Roaches were common and mice the culprits of an occasional uproar in the girls' locker room. But strangely, all of this made life interesting.

The dark spectre of the proposed merger cast a shadow of gloom and doom over our years here. Our place was threatened. But the faculty and students rallied and kept the wolves from the door each year. We came to realize that the structure itself must someday give way to decay. But we made a statement: the internal, living, breathing organism must go forward unaltered. The building can change. But the faculty and students, collectively and individually, compose the heart. If they are altered, the products of the institution will not be the same.

Times of trial, such as the proposed merger and the loss of fellow students, strengthened relations within the school family. The extreme sense of loss, the terror, and the sorrow bonded us together. We reached out for help and to support. Even though such memories are not recalled frequently, an occasional tear drops when one rediscovers such old wounds. We blush now and deny the bond that formed on those days. But it will remain, despite our suppressing it for appearances' sake.

My elders had larger bodies and egos. But they were just beginning, too. Commencement refers to graduation ceremonies. The word itself refers to a "beginning." They were not done. It was not the finish line. They were now almost ready to get started with their lives. They were scared and as awed by the world outside as I was of the gargoyles. That's why they made me feel so small. They were busy observing the world that was rushing up to hit them in the face and fabricating a front that would never let the others see them sweat. They were seeking confidence in themselves. There is an incomparable feeling of strength when one finds that he does something well. This was the place in which we were all supposed to find that one skill. Here we were to cultivate and grow. We didn't know it at the time we entered but we were about to change. Not one had ever left without undergoing some type of metamorphosis. We would change together, acting as catalysts in each other's transformation.

We were all together. Horizons were broadened. Friendships were formed and lost. Loves lived and died. Loss was felt. Pain was felt. Ideals were realistically lowered or raised to a more respectable loftiness. Joy was felt. Brothers and sisters were found who would walk forever side by side through time, doing battle with the crises of life and sharing its rewards. Examples, good and bad, were raised and followed. Life began here.

In the years to come, whether we walk, drive or fly by the site of Central High School, whether it is a Boscov's, another school, or just blacktop, there will be a feeling. Something happened here: something good happened here.

This article written by Janet Lewis was published in the November, 1985 issue of Seventeen magazine; and received an honorable mention from Galludet University, Washington, D.C.

MY PARENTS ARE DEAF

There's really no other way to say it. Should you feel sorry for me? No, there's nothing to feel sorry for. Should I be treated any differently? I don't think so, because I'm not different. My family is just as normal as the next. My parents can do everything but hear by Janet Lewis, 17, Scranton, Pa.

My mother lost her hearing at the age of six months as a result of scarlet fever; my dad became deaf after having whooping cough at nine months. Still, they married and had three children. I'm the youngest and the only one now living at home. These days, Mom works in a factory as a sewing-machine operator, and Dad is a minister at an all-deaf Baptist church. It is a small congregation—with just twenty members—but it is strong in spirit.

My parents and I have an excellent relationship because we depend on each other so much. Deaf parents rely on their hearing children to help them communicate with the hearing world. That's why my parents had no fear or anxiety about having hearing children. In fact, they believe it would be harder to raise deaf children: They would have to teach them how to communicate not only with the hearing world but with the deaf world also.

Speaking and using sign language are almost synonymous to me. When I was learning how to talk, my parents, sister, brother, and grandmother would say a word and then show me the sign for it. So it was no surprise that when I finally spoke my first words, I signed them as well. As my spoken vocabulary increased, my signing improved, too.

Just because my parents are deaf doesn't mean they can't tell me what to do. I am enslaved by my mother and father like any other teenage girl. Although my parents can't hear themselves speak, they can talk, and they even yell when they're angry enough, though it's sometimes hard to understand them.

As the daughter of deaf parents, I have some special jobs. Phone calls that can't be made on the TTY (a teletype machine that enables deaf people to use the phone) are usually made by me. That's helped me learn to communicate professionally with people in the business world. I do try to avoid interpreting speech into sign language, however, when one of my parents is having a face-to-face conversation with someone who cannot sign. It can be tiring and demands accuracy, and my sign-language skills sometimes aren't up to the job.

As used as I am to my home life, where signing is as much a part of the conversation as speaking, my friends are sometimes a little timid about coming over to visit. When I invite a boyfriend to my house for the first time, for example, he almost always gets nervous and sometimes even wants to back out of the date. "But how will I talk to them?" is a common question. Most teenagers think they have to have special skills to talk to deaf people. Others think that deaf people are antisocial. Both of these assumptions are wrong. My parents can lip-read, and they enjoy socializing with hearing people. They try to make my friends as comfortable as they can when they come over, especially for the first time. And once a friend knows the alphabet in sign language or has mastered a phrase like "How are you?" or "I'm fine" or "You look nice," my parents love them for life!

Growing up with deaf parents hasn't always been easy. I've learned to live with the frustrations and disappointments, and I know that communication between us will always be difficult. (Even top-notch lip-readers can pick up on only 50 to 60 percent of a conversation.) I can't say that I've never wished that my parents could hear, because I have. I've always wanted to have your typical family dinner-table conversation. You know, the kind where you tell Mom and Dad with your mouth half full what you've been doing in school. It isn't much to ask for, but it's something that I'll never experience. My mother was never involved with the PTA, and she never engaged in the neighborhood gossip the way my friends' mothers did. When you're eight years old, things like that get you down. I can never call home for a ride from a football game or other school function, and that sometimes limits me. My parents will never understand why I'm constantly on the phone. Or why hearing people love music so much; I can't imagine a party without it.

The many valuable lessons that I have learned from my parents, however, overwhelm the disadvantages of living in a partially deaf world. I have learned so much from this lifelong experience, and sign language is only a part of my education. I can clearly relate to how deaf and hearing people feel in almost any circumstance. This has taught me to understand the world around me just a bit better and to be sensitive to the feelings of others. Most important, though, I know that my parents love me just as much as hearing parents love their children.

Having deaf parents isn't something that I chose; it is simply a part of my life. They say that life is what you make it, and I've decided to learn to live with what I've got and to make it the best I can. I could turn my situation into a tragedy by being ashamed of my parents, but I won't. I've gained too much from them already.

Frank Gruden and Al Shields provide backup

The Class of 1986 presented a Talent Extravaganza in May. Consisting of sixteen acts, the Extravaganza provided a welcome break in the mid-spring routine at CHS. Organized by Dave Macarchick and hosted by Brian "New York, New York" Scott, the show aided in the Class of '86 fund raising and more importantly, allowed students to display talents not normally viewed by their friends, family and faculty.

The results were:

1st Place	Ralph Shulde and the 'Band'
1st Hon. Mention	Mari Grabowski
2nd Hon. Mention	Frank Gruden
3rd Hon. Mention	Melissa Simrell

Acts were judged according to Showmanship, Talent, Originality and Audience Reaction.

Secret spot picked for scandal trial

NEW YORK (UPI) — A judge selected a secret location outside New York City for the bribery trial of Bronx Democratic boss Stanley Friedman and four others accused in a city government scandal, court papers revealed Monday.

Friedman's lawyer, meanwhile, pressed for a medical check to determine whether key prosecution witness Geoffrey Lindauer, a former Parking Violations Bureau deputy director who reportedly suffered a nervous breakdown, is competent to testify, a transcript of a court hearing said.

U.S. District Court Judge Whitman Knapp agreed at a June 2 court session to move the trial outside the city but a transcript of the hearing was sealed. Lawyers revealed only that the trial was set for July 7.

Soviet rock group to make U.S. tour

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Live Soviet rock 'n' roll will make its American debut in September when a joint U.S.-Russian musical production about world peace goes on tour in 13 major North American cities, it was announced Monday.

"Peace Child," a play in which children engineer global harmony, will be performed by a troupe of U.S. and Soviet youngsters with musical backup from the Stars Namin Group, a

Safety laxity cited; sweeping management shakeup due NASA blamed for shuttle disaster

By Al Rossiter Jr.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rogers Commission, calling the Challenger disaster "an accident rooted in history," Monday blamed the tragedy on rocket failure that could have been prevented and called for a sweeping overhaul of NASA's "flawed" shuttle management.

The panel's sharply critical report said there was a serious breakdown in the decision making process that cleared the shuttle for a flight that ended 73 seconds later with an explosion that killed seven astronauts.

The 256-page document reprimanded the space agency's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., for trying to "contain potentially serious problems" and for urging rocket maker Morton Thiokol Inc. to reverse its position against launching the shuttle in cold weather.

"A well structured and managed system emphasizing safety" would have detected mounting concerns about the design of booster rocket seals and the fatal launch might have been averted, the report said.

But it did not direct blame at any individuals and said there was no evidence of sabotage. Commission Chairman William Rogers said the panel found nothing to warrant a Justice Department investigation.

"I think there's enough blame to go around," said NASA administrator James Fletcher in response to the report. "The fault was not with any single person or group but it was NASA's fault."

The Jan. 28 accident was traced to a joint that failed between two segments of Challenger's right booster rocket, probably because unusually cold 36-degree weather stiffened the rubber O-ring seal.

"We were able to determine exactly what happened," Rogers said. "We know precisely how this accident occurred, and I certainly hope there will be no nagging questions that remain about it."

The panel called for independent panels to review booster rocket design changes, a new safety organization within NASA and astronaut participation in launch decisions.

The 13-member commission, citing an "overambitious" flight schedule that put "relentless pressure" on the space agency, also said the United States should reduce its reliance on shuttles and utilize unmanned rockets to carry some satellites.

President Reagan thanked the panel for its intense four-month investigation of the accident and said the probe will make the shuttle program "better prepared for the challenges that lie ahead."

"In America we learn from our failures as well as our successes," the president said in a brief White House Rose Garden ceremony with Rogers and 11 other commission members. "And although the lessons of failure are hard, they are often the most important on the road to progress."

Astronauts win major victories

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The astronaut corps won major victories Monday from the Rogers Commission, which recommended increased crew participation in launch decisions and raised questions about the wisdom of shuttle landings in Florida.

The commission's report, released Monday, called for wide-ranging changes in NASA's management structure and safety programs to prevent a repeat of the Jan. 28 Challenger disaster.

Among the myriad recommendations was one calling for commanders of upcoming missions to participate in the crucial "flight readiness reviews" that clear shuttles for launch.

"The flight crew commander, or a designated representative, should attend the flight readiness review, participate in acceptance of the vehicle for flight and certify that the crew is properly prepared for flight," the commission said.

The panel also recommended that the director of flight crew countries.

Bandleader Stas Namin and his wife, pop star Ludmilla Sutchina, will perform in special concerts throughout the tour.

Doctors in state forming a union

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Pennsylvania physicians have formed a union to represent members in collective bargaining and to help physicians "deliver health care in a cost effective not cost containment fashion," a union official said.

With the formation of the Pennsylvania Federation of the Union of American Physicians and Dentists, Pennsylvania becomes the 12th state to join the movement to unionize physicians, said President John Cahill, a Bucks County physician and president of the Pennsylvania union.

2 survivors left of beached whales

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Only two false killer whales remained alive Monday from a group of 27 that beached themselves last week along the Florida Keys.

Three whales died Sunday night and early Monday, leaving one survivor at Sea World in Orlando and another at the tourist attraction's Marine Science and Conservation Center at Long Key.

"The prognosis is still very dim for the long-term survival" of the two remaining whales, Sea World spokeswoman Donna Donoghue said.

Peru seizes Pan Am jet, exacts $5,000 fine

By Tim Johnson

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — A Pan American jumbo jet carrying 105 people to Los Angeles was ordered to land in Lima for violating Peruvian air space, and was not allowed to resume flight until the airline paid a $5,000 fine about eight hours later, U.S. and Peruvian officials said.

Passengers aboard Pan American World Airways Flight 210 said a Peruvian military jet forced the Boeing 747 to land at Jorge Chavez International Airport in Lima, but there was no official word whether a military escort was involved.

Pan American officials in New York said the violation of Peru's air space was caused by an erroneous flight plan given to the pilot of the jetliner. "It's a pretty serious administrative error on our part," airline spokesman James Arey said.

Peru and the United States do not have an air traffic agreement, and a U.S. Embassy spokesman who asked not to be identified said the jetliner was ordered to land because it had not provided Peruvian civil aviation authorities with 48 hours' notice of the overflight.

The jetliner landed at the airport in the capital at 6:45 a.m. and was not allowed to take off again until 2:43 p.m., according to Lima's chief air traffic controller, Juan Vasquez.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman said the jetliner was permitted to leave after the airline paid a $5,000 fine for violating Peruvian airspace.

Peruvian authorities offered no immediate comment, but said a statement was forthcoming.

The plane, flying from Buenos Aires, Argentina, to Los Angeles, strayed over Peruvian air space because "an erroneous (flight) plan" had been filed for the jet by a Pan Am dispatcher Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Pan Am spokesman James Arey said in New York.

Arey described the order to land by Peruvian officials as "a pro-forma thing" because of the lack of an air-traffic agreement between the two countries.

"The pilot was on course, given the flight plan and map he was given," Arey said. "The pilot, of course, could have questioned the plan, but did not."

After reviewing the plan from the dispatcher in Brazil, the crew in Buenos Aires determined that the jet would need to make a refueling stop in Acapulco, Mexico, Arey said.

Plea bargain struck in Belushi murder case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The woman accused of murdering comedian John Belushi with a 1982 drug overdose has agreed to plead guilty to a reduced charge of involuntary manslaughter, a prosecutor said Monday.

In a plea bargain worked out with the District Attorney's Office, Cathy Evelyn Smith also agreed to plead guilty to three counts of furnishing and administering to Belushi the heroin and cocaine that killed him, Deputy District Attorney Elden Fox said.

Smith, 38, a former heroin addict and backup rock singer from Toronto, Canada, is to plead guilty to the charges formally on Wednesday, the date her trial was set to begin, Fox said.

The plea-bargain arrangement calls for no stipulated punishment, meaning Superior Court Judge David Horowitz will be free to sentence Smith to whatever term he sees fit.

Nine other drug counts will be dismissed her at sentencing, he said.

The maximum sentence she could receive under the agreement would be eight years and eight months in state prison. Had she stood trial and been convicted on all the original counts she would have faced a term of 25 years to life in prison.

Fox said the plea bargain, long-reported to be in the works, was finalized Friday in a telephone conference between him and Smith's attorney, Howard Weitzman.

Weitzman was not immediately available to comment on the arrangement Monday.

Belushi, 33, rocketed to fame in the mid-1970s on the "Saturday Night Live" late-night comedy series and later starred in such movies as "Animal House" and "The Blues Brothers." He was found dead of an overdose of heroin and cocaine in a bungalow at the Chateau Marmont Hotel on the Sunset Strip on March 5, 1982.

The Los Angeles County grand jury in March 1983 indicted Smith for Belushi's death, charging her with one count of second-degree murder and 13 counts of administering cocaine and heroin.

A June 1982 article in the tabloid National Enquirer quoting Smith saying "I killed John Belushi" spurred the re-investigation of his death.

In January 1985 Smith agreed to return voluntarily to Los Angeles from Canada as part of a plea bargain her Toronto attorney worked out with the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office.

Under terms of that deal, Smith was to have pleaded guilty to the same charges that she has agreed to plead guilty to Wednesday.

However, when Weitzman took on the case, he advised Smith to reject the deal. He said he felt the former singer should not have to spend any time in prison.

Weitzman tried to get the charges — particularly the murder count — dismissed at a preliminary hearing last year. He failed and a judge ordered Smith to stand trial in Superior Court.

Since then, Weitzman has tried to strike a new deal with prosecutors, one in which Smith would not have to serve any state prison time.

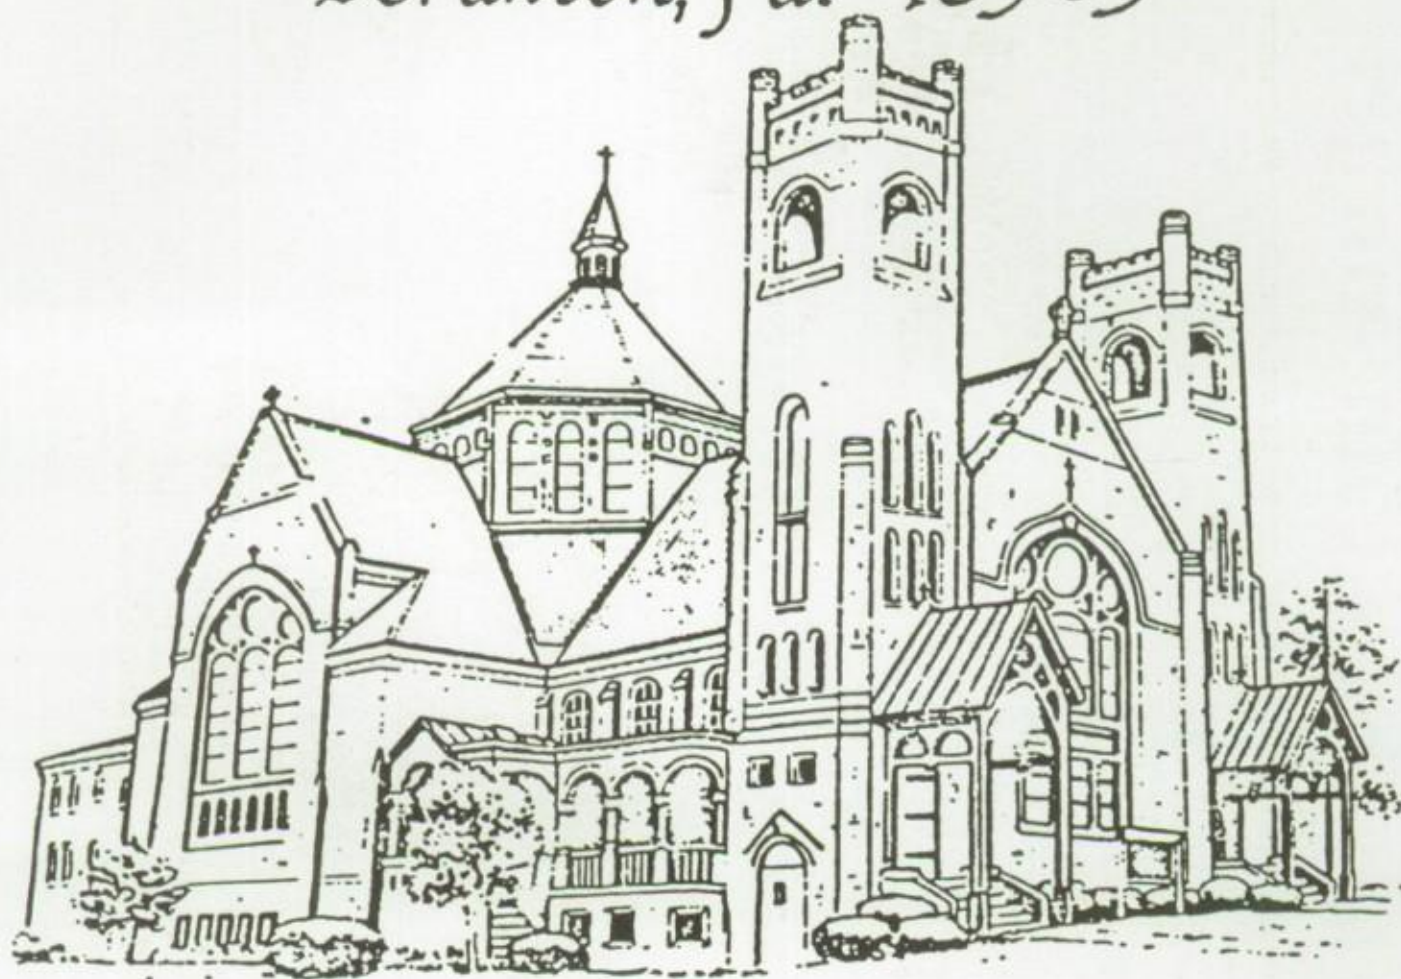

"I have said all along that I didn't feel the Cathy Smith case deserved state prison," Weitzman, who previously won an acquittal for former auto maker John DeLorean on federal cocaine charges, told UPI recently.

A Shuttle Escape System Termed Impractical Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vice chairman of the Rogers Commission told Congress today that an "all-situation" escape system is "neither practical nor desirable" for space shuttle astronauts.

The panel has endorsed a system for crew escape if the shuttle encounters difficulties in landing.

Neil Armstrong said he could foresee the possibility of providing future shuttle crews with "limited escape possibilities," although he said no escape system that the panel considered would have allowed the Challenger astronauts to survive the January disaster.

Appearing with Commission Chairman William Rogers as Congress began a lengthy set of hearings into the nation's worst space disaster, Armstrong said that "exotic systems" such as a rocket-propelled escape module "are probably not practical to incorporate in the design at this stage."

"But the ones on the simple end deserve additional examination, because as the system exists now... there really is no means of survival" at numerous points in a shuttle flight, he said.

Rogers, a former secretary of state, offered the House Science and Technology Committee this summary of a four-month probe: "There's no doubt about it, serious mistakes were made," he said. "There were failures. We set them all out."

The report blames the accident on a faulty joint in the shuttle's right booster rocket, although it faults NASA for an insufficient safety program and calls for sweeping management changes at the agency.

Rogers also said there already has been a change in attitude at NASA. "There almost was an attitude on the part of some people at NASA based on their public statements that the accident never happened. That the commi-sion was causing the problem. And I pointed out to some of them in private, we didn't have anything to do with the accident. We just came on later on."

Rogers, who also previously served as attorney general, told Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., it would be "unwise" to file criminal charges against any NASA officials, and not in the national interest.

"I don't think there was any venality here, and I really don't believe there was any gross negligence. I think there were misunderstandings about what each person was responsible for," he said.

The issue of a crew escape system first surfaced in the days immediately after the Challenger accident, when NASA officials said the shuttle design did not permit a crew escape during the first two minutes of flight, while the rocket boosters are firing.

Many space agency experts feel that an escape system might not be practical because the chance of it malfunctiontioning would be greater than the chance of an accident where it could be used.

Nor did the Rogers commission make such a recommendation, although it called on NASA to "make all efforts to provide a crew escape system," during the shuttle's gliding descent back to earth at the end of a flight.

Superfund 'Sleeper'

Polluters Face 'New' Fines

Scripps Howard Service

Using research by Rhode Island scientists, federal and state governments soon will be able to charge polluters of public land and waterways throughout the country for every fish, duck or goose they kill. The so-called natural resource damage assessments were authorized by a little known section of the Superfund legislation six years ago and have been little noticed since.

But they are expected to go into effect this fall and impose heavy new costs on industries that pollute. The Interior Department is running the program and even it doesn't know what the total costs may be, according to a spokesman.

But industry officials say it could be more than the nearly $2 billion the chemical and oil industries already have spent on cleanups.

"When states start bringing suits with this it could dwarf the cleanup claims," said Barbara Hindin, a lawyer for the Chemical Manufacturers Association, a Washington-based trade group.

"These provisions have been called the Superfund 'sleeper' and have the potential for greatly increasing the amount of damages polluting parties may be held liable for," added Roger C. Dower, research director for the Environmental Law Institute in Washington.

A big part of the new program is a computer model prepared last year by researchers from the University of Rhode Island and a private company, Applied Science Associates.

The program assesses the impact of a chemical spill on coastal waters and adds up the damages. To do that the model sets values on each component of our natural resources. For instance, if a beach is closed, the economic loss is set at $8 per person per day. That's based on studies that suggest a closed beach would force individuals to spend $8 doing something else that's comparable, like going to the movies.

Anytime after the extent of an oil or chemical spill has been determined, a government regulator can sit down at a computer and type in the nature of the spill, the location, the date and the classification of the habitat where it took place.

That information will be analyzed using three data bases. The first contains information on nearly 500 chemicals commonly found to pollute the environment.

A second base contains biological data that would determine the effect the chemical would have on the creatures it comes into contact with. The third contains economic information so the value of the resources destroyed can be determined.

Four Industries Deride Plan To Snuff Out Tobacco Ads

Industries have caused rains under the banner of the First Amendment in denouncing a congressional overture to ban all promotion and advertising of tobacco products.

Spokesmen for all four industries said the bill introduced Monday was unconstitutional. The chief sponsor of the measure said he disagreed, but conceded that the stiff opposition and the short time remaining in this year's congressional session likely will kill any chance of passing the bill in 1986. "We don't look at this as an easy

The bill and would forbid tobacco companies from sponsoring athletic or artistic events under a brand name or promoting a non-tobacco product or service carrying the same name or logo as a tobacco product. Synar acknowledged that the constitutional question of freedom of speech was an issue, but he insisted that a study has convinced him and others the expansive bill could pass constitutional muster. "The right to commercial free speech is not absolute," Synar said.

But the bill was immediately attacked by the Tobacco Institute as "blatantly unconstitutional," and others joined the criticism. "We take no position here with respect to health risks," said a joint statement by the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the American Magazine Publishers Association.

But the bill was immediately attacked by the Tobacco Institute as "blatantly unconstitutional," and others joined the criticism. "We take no position here with respect to health risks," said a joint statement by the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the American Magazine Publishers Association.

Stapf said, the bill likely would be ineffective. He said studies abroad have shown that advertising bans have little effect on smoking habits. Synar said smoking is the chief cause of preventable illness in the United States and led to the deaths of 350,000 people last year. Treating those illnesses cost Americans $22 billion last year, including $4 billion from the federal Treasury, he said. The country lost $43 billion in productivity because of smoking, he said.

Lobbyists Pushing for Bill At Expense of Taxpayers

Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate Finance Committee is providing office space and a telephone in a Senate building to private lobbyists working on behalf of the tax overhaul bill.

The so-called "15-27-33" coalition, named after the individual and corporate tax rates in the panel's bill, is composed of 600 groups, primarily corporations and industries that would benefit directly from lower income taxes in the bill, but also some church, community, and anti-poverty groups.

Members of the coalition include food wholesalers, trucking groups, defense contractors, wine, liquor, and beer groups, tobacco, and insurance companies in addition to the League of Women Voters and the Consumer Federation of America.

"We were sensitive to this, checked into it, and made sure it was OK," said attorney William Ris, who heads the coalition.

The lobby group was formed after the Finance Committee unanimously voted to send its sweeping tax reform bill to the Senate floor last month.

Ris said the group set up shop in the main room of the Senate Finance Committee after a lawyer for the Senate ethics committee said the procedure violated no Senate rules. The group's lobbyist, Van Yeutter, has been telephoning senators, seeking meetings to discuss the coalition's ideas on tax reform.

The coalition supports the Senate tax bill, but has threatened to withdraw its backing if any provisions are changed.

Bonnie Parker, chief of staff on the Senate Ethics Committee, said the question . . . had never been asked before and the decision appeared within the jurisdiction of the Finance Committee and the Senate Rules Committee.

that would affect the rates in the measure, or decrease the number — 6.5 million — of poor people who would be freed of taxes under the bill.

Bonnie Parker, chief of staff on the Senate ethics committee, declined to comment on the counsel's specific advice, describing it as an informal sponsored when a reporter asked if lawmakers could meet the budget deadline. Tilghman said a lot had to be done and no leadership negotiations had yet begun.

Lawmakers and staff in the House, however, said informal talks between the two chambers have occurred. The extended illness and death last week of Constance Manderino, the wife of House Majority Leader James Manderino, D-Westmoreland, may have held up more extensive negotiations, legislative staff and lawmakers acknowledge.

HARRISBURG (AP) — The chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee on Monday said he believes lawmakers are running behind schedule in their attempt to reach agreement on a new state budget.

House Democrats, however, said they see no major roadblocks to meeting a June 30 deadline, as they begin floor debate and amendments to Gov. Dick Thornburgh's proposal. "It's further behind than I can ever remember," said Sen. Richard Tilghman, R-Montgomery, chairman of the Appropriations Committee. He re-correspondence. But Ms. Parker said the question of private lobbyists using Senate facilities "had never been asked before" and the decision appeared to be within the jurisdiction of the Finance Committee and the Senate Rules Committee.

"There's nothing that would prohibit this, but there's nothing that would allow it either," said Dennis Doherty, auditor for the Rules Committee.

"There is certainly no institutional policy, except that if it is paid for with official funds, it must be official business. You're talking about dedicating a phone for a particular group."

"We're a diverse group to come in on tax reform, and we are just trying to get our message to the Senate," said Ris.

He said there were a "number of precedents" for Senate facilities being used for private functions and meetings, and cited a Saudi prince who lobbied for arms sales to Saudi Arabia from Vice President George Bush's office in the Capitol.

In 1982, a report by the congressional General Accounting Office accused some Defense Department officials of violating a 1919 law by teaming up with Lockheed Corp. lobbyists to push for a multibillion-dollar purchase of 50 cargo planes.

House Democrats on Monday cautioned on their budget proposal and lawmakers privy to the private talks said there were about 200 amendments expected to be offered on the House floor.

Democratic leaders apparently plan to handle the amendments today and Wednesday and send an approved bill to the Senate for consideration next week, lawmakers said.

"A House bill is usually passed by now but there seems to be major agreement" on most provisions in the budget, said Rep. Allen Kukovich, D-Westmoreland, and a member of the

Pamela Gleason, widow of slain Philadelphia cop Daniel Gleason, embraces son, Barry, 8, one of their six children, after his funeral. Gleason was killed when he tried to break up a fight involving a prostitute soliciting on the street. (AP Laserphoto)

State Democrats Behind Schedule on Budget

Kukovich said programs funded by the state lottery aren't included in the bill but should be able to be handled quickly in separate legislations.

In addition, there will likely be extensive debate and amendments on how education will be funded in the state. Democrats and Republicans have proposed spending roughly equivalent amounts but have put the money in different lines of the budget.

While that could result in long and heated debate, ultimate resolution of the differences is not seen as a major hindrance to having a budget in place by July 1.

House Appropriations Committee. "I don't think it's anything real major," said Kukovich. "I don't think we're that far behind. I don't see what will hold it up."

The Democrat-sponsored plan was unveiled last week and hurriedly approved by the House Appropriations Committee.

House Democratic leaders and Thornburgh agree on reducing the state personal income tax from 2.2 percent to 2.1 percent July 1. They also agree on cutting the corporate net income tax from 9.5 percent to 8.5 percent on New Year's Day.

Baptist Moderates Lose Move

ATLANTA (AP) — Moderate Southern Baptists quickly lost a first skirmish to rival fundamentalists today as about 40,000 members of the denomination packed the Georgia World Congress Center to open a contentious national meeting.

The delegates, or "messenger" from individual churches, were to elect a new president later in the day, choosing between the fundamentalist candidate, who was featured in a pre-convention program attended by thousands of delegates, and a moderate opponent who has been all but invisible in official convention activities.

Shortly after the meeting began at 9 a.m., delegate David White of Maryland moved that the candidates be allowed to address the convention before the election — a move apparently aimed at giving the moderate some exposure.

The current convention president, the Rev. Charles Stanley, an Atlanta fundamentalist, rejected the motion, saying without elaboration, "You cannot compel a man to speak."

"Point of order," White said, noting that he had said nothing about forcing anyone to speak.

"The point of order is not well taken," Stanley said, and convention business moved on.

A special peace committee of the nation's largest Protestant denomination called Monday for a cease-fire by moderates and fundamentalists, saying that whoever wins the election, there must be a prompt end to destructive name-calling, politicking and other fighting between the two groups.

Amid the talk of peace, though, the chairman of the committee said there probably will be "casualties" and people "dealt with" before the dust finally settles on a feud over just how much theological diversity the traditionally conservative denomination of 14.5 million can stand.

The rivals in the presidential election were:

—The Rev. Adrian Rogers, 54-year-old pastor of Bellevue Baptist Church in Memphis, Tenn., the candidate of PAMELA PEREGRIM — Advertising Aide — Class of 1995.

Once again we would like to thank Mr. Peregrim for all his help, understanding, and encouragement. He was always there when we had a problem, eager to offer a solution. He proved himself to be a super advisor and a special friend.
